VOTERS INVITED TO BOOST BONDS

SPECIAL MEETING CALLED FOR THIRD MONDAY OF THIS MONTH

With only the faithful "old guard" present at the regular monthly meeting of the O. B. Chamber of Commerce last Monday night, the session resolved into a talkfest, with the children's playground proposition as the chief topic discussed. Councilman Virgil Bruschi (a boosting member of the local chamber) was in attendance and put in a good word for the beach recreation center. Tom Deering, executive secretary of the Community Service, was also on hand with some valuable suggestions and outlined interesting details about the Harmon gift of $2,000 toward securing the necessary playground property.

In view of the fact that a special legal petition will have to be signed individually by registered voters only for the four precincts affected, it was planned to call a special mass meeting of the residents and propertyowners of Ocean Beach to be held on Monday evening, February 16, at the Congregational building on De Foe street, opposite the O. B. Public School. All signers of the previous petitions are earnestly urged to be present, as well as every registered voter in Ocean Beach.

Besides definite action on the revised petition for the children's playground, invitations will be extended to all of the announced candidates for city offices at the forthcoming election in order that they may pointedly state their position on matters directly concerning the welfare of the beach districts.

Remember the date, Monday, February 16, and make no other engagements for that evening. You and your neighbor are requested to be in attendance and take part in the proceedings.

Let's co-operate and all be there.

'Hot Dogs-What-Nots'

PROPERTY OWNER WANTS ACTION ABOUT LIGHTS ON NEWPORT AVENUE

Ocean Beach, Feb. 3, 1925.
Mr. Kirk Smith,
Editor "Beach News"

Dear Sir—For some time I have been wondering what is the matter with the business men on Newport avenue in neglecting to light up that thoroughfare equal with Abbott street? For more than ten years we have been keeping up a lighting system on Abbott street merely to help them sell hot dogs and what-nots. It is about time for a show-down, and I can assure you if they are convinced that they do not need lighted streets we will get enough of "boobs" like myself to wake up and turn off the lights on Abbott street. If they don't get busy, I will!

Respectfully yours,
JOHN J. FITZPATRICK.

CONTRACTOR GEO. FINLEY CONSTRUCTING FINE HOME FOR JOHN BURNS

In a very desirable location on Newport avenue, between Cable and De Foe streets, construction work was begun this week by Contractor George Finley of a handsome new residence for John Burns. The house will consist of five rooms and bath, with all modern conveniences and the plans devised by Contractor Finley call for a total cost of $4,000. The building promises to be a splendid ornament to the main thoroughfare and will be a valuable asset to the residential section.

Practical And Attractive Concrete Seawall - Terminal

CONSTRUCTION BEGUN ON SUBSTANTIAL IMPROVEMENT AT MISSION BEACH

An immense seawall, along the ocean front of the new amusement center in Mission Beach, and an attractive and practical terminal of the San Diego Electric railway that will enable quick passage of crowds of pedestrians free from traffic dangers are two additional big contracts now being rapidly developed at Mission Beach.

Seawall and Esplanade

The seawall of concrete will be 1600 feet in length and of parapet type, the parapet forming a guard rail and seating bench twenty inches above a cement esplanade twenty-five feet wide, which will be constructed in connection with the wall to replace the present board walk. From the entrances of each of the ocean front buildings and street ends, approaches will be made to the beach sands. The design of these are breaks in the parapet with extension of the walk fourteen feet and stairs from the sides of these extensions down to the sands. Ornamental lamps will be placed along the wall parapet at intervals of 100 feet.

Attractive Railway Terminal

The terminal feature, which Sharp & Fellows will build, is an open top concrete subway about 450 feet long which will extend from ocean to bay front sections of the amusement center, under bridges carrying Mission boulevard and the beach line railway tracks. Through the center, Mission boulevard has been widely divided, with outbound and inbound sides curved far apart to allow terminal tracks, as well as the double track main line of the railway between. In the oval thus formed, spur tracks will be placed south of the subway while the space north of the subway will be parking space for automobiles turning in from the two sides of the divided boulevard.

Subway and Bridges

From railway trains and automobiles, passengers will walk into the subway and pass to either ocean or bay front sections of the amusement center, and through the subway pedestrians may pass between sections without crossing tracks or boulevard. Concrete bridges of ornamental design will span the subway, one at the easterly end carrying the outbound side of Mission boulevard, one in the center carrying the double track main line of the railway, and one at the westerly end carrying the inbound side of Mission boulevard.

Ready Next Summer

Sharp & Fellows, widely known contractors, have both construction jobs and have laid out an immense camp for rush work that is expected to complete these projects in time for readiness when the new amusement center is opened to the public a few months hence.

Col. Couts informed us that the government buildings erected near the Playa, under Lieut. Weeden's supervision, are substantial and durable edifices, and will not only serve their temporary purpose as quarters for the workmen on the fortifications, but can afterward be used by the government for barracks, store houses, etc. Three of them are already completed. Other buildings are in progress at Ballast Point.

In this connection it may be well to state that Lieut. Weeden expects thirty-two skilled workmen down by the "Orizaba." These are workers in cement, who are expected to have special skill. The rest of the workers, as we have stated heretofore, will be San Diegans.

The first reference to our Portuguese neighbors is made in the "World" of October 1, 1873; this a rather gruesome record:

Bodies Excavated at Ballast Point

Day before yesterday while the workmen were excavating at Ballast Point, they came on the body of a man which had been thrown into a hole that had evidently been hurriedly filled up, making a rude grave. At a short distance they came upon the corpse of an Indian. This last was enclosed in a rough pine box.

The Caucasian was dressed in every day clothes and the appearances point to there having been a probable murder. Old settlers recall the disappearance of a Portuguese from San Diego about twenty years ago, and the remains are supposed to be his. By Lieut. Weeden's orders, the bodies were reinterred with military honors in new made graves on the hillside."

Next Day

"We have learned new facts as to the exhumation of bodies the other day at Ballast Point. Three bodies —instead of two—were so exhumed. A Portuguese, a Yakui (Yagui) Indian and a Chinaman were all wedged closely together in the Cosmopolitan graveyard. The Portuguese was not murdered, as we had supposed, but died a natural death some five years ago."

And another Portuguese unfortunate is here signified:

"Day before yesterday (December 23), about nine o'clock in the morning Manuel Vierra borrowed Mr. Bruschi's boat and started out for the kelp to fish. He had been in the habit of fishing for a livelihood. About dusk of the same day he was observed beating toward the channel with sails set. The wind was against him and he was making very little progress. About 9 o'clock of that day his boat was carried to the shore at Ballast Point. The poor Portuguese was missing. One of his shoes, a heavy and coarse brogan, was found in the boat, entangled in the ropes. The probability is that the wind veered suddenly, and that poor Vierra, thrown off his guard, was struck by the boom of the swinging sail and engulfed in the bay."

PAVING PROBLEM FOR SCHOOLS DEFERRED 'TILL ELECTION TIME

Solving of the problem of financing the paving of streets in front of school properties may be reached as the result of a conference this week at the instigation of Councilman Heilbron, between the city council and the board of education. It was decided to submit a bond issue of about $70,000 at the spring election for this work. The money would come out of the school board bond margin. A separate ballot will have to be used at the election for this purpose.

NEW FIRM BUILDS AND ARRANGES FINANCES

"Pay Rent Into Your Own Pocket," is the striking slogan used by the new firm of Ocean Beach contractors, Heather & Winston, who have opened their headquarters at 1914 Bacon street. They particularly emphasize the fact that if you own your lot and will consult them about construction, they will arrange the necessary finances for building. The members of the firm are quite well known in Ocean Beach, Mr. Heather being a resident, and Mr. Winston is a property owner and has lived here over five years. The new firm announce their readiness to fulfill contracts for building and carpentry work of all kinds.

FISHERMEN FIND BODY OF WILLIAM WARREN AMONG KELP BEDS

While fishing in the ocean off of Point Loma Last Tuesday Elias Showl and Thomas Metika discovered the body of William Warren, who was drowned more than a month ago, floating in the kelp. The fishermen secured the body to a buoy and then notified Coroner Kelly, who ordered the body taken to the Randall, Lovell & Moody undertaking parlors.

William, with his brother Claude, were in a rowboat that capsized near Mission bay after being carried into the surf by the outgoing tide on December 28, last year. Efforts at rescue failed and both were drowned. The body of Claude was recovered January 1,. when it was washed ashore at Ocean Beach.

CHANGES AND GROWTH IN BUSINESS CENTER

Construction work is rapidly progressing on a new business building at 1868 Bacon street, where James P. Froide will establish his popular photographic headquarters about February 16, removing from the present location on Newport avenue, opposite the postoffice. The new building has been especially designed by "Jim" Froide to secure the best results in photography. It will afford direct northern light and the entire equipment will combine the latest improvements.

Announcement will very probably be made soon of a change in the automotive industry here, and the entrance of two or three new lines of business are also on the cards for the growth of the commercial center. How about a branch bank?

"SET-BACK" COMPLAINT

Following a protest by neighboring property owners, construction work has been ordered suspended on the proposed business building at Cable and Voltaire streets. Complaint was made to the city council that the plans of the new building did not conform to restrictions regarding houses set back from the street.

OLDEST ACTIVE BARBER

Joseph Jacob Touve of Centralia, Ill., is believed to be the oldest active barber in the United States. Now in his eighty-seventh year, he has worked continuously at his trade in this country for sixty-four years, while for three years previously he was employed in a shop in Bavaria, where he was born. Touve came to America in 1856, opening his present shop in 1863. One of his regular patrons was Marvin Hughitt, then a telegraph operator for the Illinois Central at Centralia and now chairman of the board of directors of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad. Another one of his patrons were Gen. Phil Sheridan.

GIFT OF A BIRD LOVER

Referring to himself as "an old friend of Washington's warblers," Jules Jusserand, retiring French ambassador, paid tribute to the capital's song birds by dedicating to them a bird fountain on the lawn of the John Dickson home on Fourteenth street. The fountain is made of yellow marble imported from France and the inscription reads "Dedicated to the birds of Piney Branch by Elsie and Jules Jusserand, 1903-1925."

Humble Socket Is Important to Set

Attachment Should Be Made of Best Material —Contact Springs.

The humble socket, used to hold the vacuum tube and to provide the means of making an electrical contact between the prongs of the tube and the rest of the circuit, receives less attention from the radio fan than it should.

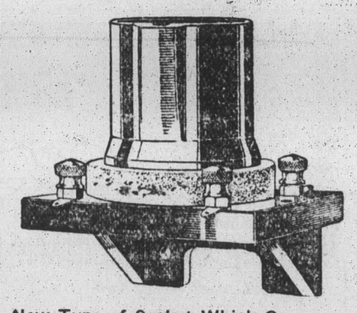
The socket should be carefully scrutinized, for it is at this point that the plate and grid wires and filament leads come very close to each other. If the socket is made of poor insulating material these currents will leak across the base between the binding posts, and become lost. The volume and distance of the receiver will suffer. Nothing less than bakelite should be used.

Do not accept a socket made of material that can be easily cut with a knife, or will leave a black mark when rubbed across a piece of white paper. Material that will do this has lampblack in it, which is a very poor insulating substance. As a rule this class of material will melt under the heat of a soldering iron.

Of next importance are the contact springs. Poor contact springs cause a great deal of the noise that is attributed to static. Due to the short distance available on the inside of a socket, and the need for keeping the dimensions of the socket as small as possible, the contact spring must necessarily be short. Due to the shortness of the spring, most of the sockets at present are unsatisfactory, because the springs become permanently bent. This requires frequent bending back into their former position so that a good contact can be obtained with the prongs of the tube.

One manufacturer has solved this problem by making the spring longer, then bending the tip of the spring backwards and upwards. This eliminates the short leverage on the spring, allowing it to bend in two places. Springs are made of phosphor bronze and always keep a firm upward pressure against the tube prong.

The socket should also be non-microphonic. In a receiver which uses ordinary sockets, a loud ring will be heard whenever the set is jarred. Often removing the hand from the tuner dial will be sufficient to cause the tubes to set up this ring. This is caused by the elements of the tubes vibrating.



New Type of Socket Which Overcomes Difficulty.

To cure this, many set builders fasten their sockets on soft rubber sponges to absorb vibration. The chief objection to this method is that if you use screws to hold the socket down to the baseboard, or use bus bar wiring to the binding posts, the socket is mechanically connected to the baseboard, and the rubber support does not help a great deal in reducing noises.

A new type of socket has appeared on the market, which overcomes this difficulty. The socket is made of two pieces of molded bakelite. On one piece is mounted the binding posts and a pad of soft spongy rubber is glued on in the center. The shell of the socket contains the contact springs and this is glued to the top of the rubber pad. Connections are made from the binding posts to the contact springs by flexible stranded wire leads underneath the shell of the base. These wire leads are "dead" as far as vibrations are concerned, and the tube is therefore completely floated.

The socket can be mounted directly on the back of the panel or on the baseboard. The soft rubber pad allows for the absorption of side jars as well as those in a vertical direction.

Poor Connections in Jacks Cause Trouble

Sometimes a set will cease functioning or will function poorly on the last stage of audio-frequency amplification. This is almost always due to a poor connection in the jack that precedes the last stage or in one of the preceding jacks in other stages.

If you have this trouble, look in between the small silver contacts in the jacks and notice whether or not they close properly when the plug is withdrawn from them. Sometimes the springs weaken and do not allow them to close as they should.

The remedy is to take out the jack and bend the offending spring back into position, and then to replace the jack.

Winter Weather Hard on Aerials and Grounds

Because winter storms mean heavy strains on aerial and ground installations, it is a good idea to make a thorough inspection of the outdoor wiring system. See if the guy wires holding the aerial masts and the aerial wires in place are all taut and tight. Look over all soldered connections and try to determine if they have become corroded.

Community Building

Paint Rightly Claims to Have Double Value

The good appearance of the house usually proves to be the strongest point in persuading anyone to paint his house. The matter of preserving the surface does not enter into consideration as it should. The common desire to have one's home at its best cannot be condemned, but paint means much more than this. Paint is not a luxury by any means; it is a necessity and an economic one.

Wood is porous. While growing, these pores are filled with sap. When the tree is cut into lumber the sap dries out, leaving the pores open. The protective coatings of bark are also removed. If the wood is allowed to remain in this unprotected state, fungi and moisture soon begin to rot and destroy it. Paint penetrates the pores and forms, when dry, a tough, elastic coating, which is "anchored" to the surface by countless little "hooks" that extend into pores of the wood, and this coating or film preserves the wood by protecting it from those things which would otherwise quickly and surely destroy it.

The psychological value, the invigorating effect of clean, brightly painted property, is another factor we cannot afford to disregard, and this alone should be sufficient cause to warrant painting in times of temporary business depression.

The price that should be paid for the paint is another consideration—and an important one. The best quality paint is the cheapest. The cost should be reckoned on the basis of the square foot and the expense as so much per paint service year. In this way the true value and the cheapness of good paint will be recognized.

General Shortage of Building Is Reported

That a national building shortage somewhat in excess of $4,000,000,000 exists in the entire country is indicated by reports made to a leading investment concern in a survey of all cities of more than 10,000 population.

Studies were made in 528 cities. In 380 of these, reports were made of building shortages amounting to $4,050,820,000, of which $2,102,698,500 is needed for residential types; $1,130,851,500 for commercial types and $870,270,000 for public buildings of all kinds. In 148 cities no shortage was reported, thus indicating that in these places the amount of building requirements now rests on the normal demands of growth and improvement.

That a shortage of considerable magnitude also exists in places having less than 10,000 population was indicated by the results of the inquiry in 20 typical towns of this type in various parts of the United States. Twelve of these places showed aggregate shortages of more than $14,000,000, while eight revealed normal conditions.

The investigation also brought to light definitely planned expenditures of nearly $800,000,000 in the next two years for churches, hospitals, charitable and educational institutions, these figures not being included in actual shortages now existing.

Architecture Important

That architectural merit adds dollars to the value of a house is convincingly demonstrated when old homes possessing architectural distinction find a ready sale at good prices, while a poorly designed dwelling is a "drug" on the market. Many bizarre creations are produced by designers who seem to think that when a multiplicity of gables, of projecting rafters and sharply contrasting hues in stucco and bricks are achieved, the result is bound to be pleasantly modern and desirable. Investors are finding to their sorrow, however, that this type of house is passing out with the jazz music of which it is symbolical, and present builders would do well to keep this in mind if they wish to realize full value on their property.

Lining Them Up

"There is no one in the world," says the Brunswick (Ga.) News, "that 'knows' more about raising children than an old maid, and there is no citizen that kicks more about public organizations and their activities than the fellow who never pays dues to one of them, never is the father of any movement for the city's good, nor takes an active part in the community affairs, except to knock. The hardest knocker and the loudest critic can always be branded as the biggest shirker—he carries his 'bell' with him. If you are in his class, take stock of yourself, right-about-face and become a real citizen and a community builder."

Plants for the Lawn

In the choice of plants for the lawn, says an expert in that line of home and city beautification, a few special rules are of interest and value. Choose hardy plants. Use dogwoods, honeysuckles, spiraeas, ninebark, etc., for shrubs; woodbine, Dutchman pipe, honeysuckle, clematis for vines, and hardy perennial flowers for the borders, then add maples, spruces, elms, etc., in suitable places to complete the plan. Plant in the spring rather than in the fall.

NOT QUITE HOPELESS

Edwin—I love you as I never lover before.
Angelina—Don't worry. Just keep at it and you'll soon learn the tricks so no one will notice it.

ON THE WATCH

"For heaven's sake! What are you doing there?"
"Didn't I tell you I'd be on the watch when you came?"

HE HAD HIS USE

"I can't imagine, Maud, why a girl like you ever took a husband."
"Why, he's ever so convenient when I go shopping, my dear."

DROPPED HER WORDS

"She always manages to make noise enough to have everybody know she's around."
"Yes; does so by dropping a word here and there."

SET OFF DOWN HERE

She—Matches are made in heaven.
He—But don't you think most of 'em are set off down here?

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

HELP YOURSELF

EVERYTHING beneath the sun is available to the deserving, so reach out your hands and help yourself.

To be worthy you should be patient, industrious, persevering, charitable toward the weak, respectful to the strong.

You must overcome foolish pride and envy; be not afraid to soil your hands, but a veritable coward when it comes to the point where you are called upon to smudge your soul.

Go forth with a heart full of faith and a joyous countenance.

Do not grumble if you happen to be in the lower ranks.

Think of the great men of today who came up from humble places and won distinction, whose names are written across the lands and seas in flaming letters.

Hold faith high above your head. Let its unfailing torch illuminate your path all through life, and march on assured that the goal you have set your heart upon is just ahead.

Do not falter if your road should be difficult and your burden wearisome.

Difficulties are common obstacles. No one can get anything worth while without overcoming them.

Affluence and power have their beginning in small things, both capable of being won by well-directed thought and effort.

They belong to the capable who are qualified to use them in the right way, not to the doubting, inefficient and wavering, but to the courageous, the steadfast, who never admit defeat nor turn their faces in the darkest hour from the sun of faith, shining always on every cross and care.

If you would help yourself to the best there is, keep track of your faults. If inclined to procrastinate, take a lesson from the tides, the revolving earth, never delaying or hurrying.

Be methodical, even though it may in the present day of haste and confusion be considered old-fashioned.

Train your mind to remember what your eyes see; keep your brain sensitized so that the impressions made upon it shall become permanent pictures to which you can turn when they may be needed.

Only what you can recollect in the vital moment is of any use to you, and in that moment, if you should fail to remember, your whole future might be blighted.

THE FIRST NAME

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

TO KNOW the fellow that I meet,
And meet him with a smile,
And not unknown to walk the street,
Unnoticed all the while—
Oh, that's the road I want to go,
I want to have a friend or so.

To call the fellows "Pete" or "Bill,"
Not "Mister" all the time,
Will keep me younger on the hill
Of life I have to climb—
Will make me feel a boy again,
And do the same for other men.

To have men called me what they did
Back there in boyhood days.
The things they called me when a kid,
Is sweeter than the praise
That any flatterer may give,
Will help me more my life to live.

The last name is the name of age,
The first the name of youth;
I pray you, backward turn the page
To innocence and truth
When I was young, and so were you,
And call me what they used to do.

Your Last Name

IS IT CUSHING?

THIS name of Cushing, well known in England and the United States, may be derived from Couzon, a place in France, though it may, in some instances, be derived from the French word for cousin. One authority on name origin has it, however, that the name is derived from an older surname Cusyn, from the French, meaning cook, and that it is therefore an occupative name like Cook. Other forms of the same name are Cushon and Cushion.

The Americans of the name can trace their descent back to a period before America was discovered by Columbus. The first whose name and record are known was Thomas Cushing of Hardenham, England, whose will is dated 1466. His son, William, of Hingham, England, had a son of Hardingham, and his son Peter was the father of Peter Cushing who was born in 1589, who came to this country with his wife Nazareth, settling in Boston in 1658. Later they removed to Hingham, Mass., named from the old home of the Cushings in England.

There have been many prominent Cushings in many different professions. William B. Cushing was a distinguished naval officer in the Civil war and Nathaniel Cushion was a brave soldier in the Revolution. There was a Thomas Cushion noted as a statesman in the Revolution, and a Caleb Cushing, born in 1800, an able statesman in pre-Civil war days. He it was who confirmed the first treaty between the United States and China. Frank Hamilton Cushing was a noted ethnologist and Jonathan Cushing was a prominent educator.

Tiffany.—This is an old English name derived from the word once popularly used for Epiphany. Perhaps it was first adopted by one who was born in the season of Epiphany—just after Christmas.

Budd.—It is hard to trace this surname to its origin. One good authority places it with a group of short names that are probably contractions of longer first names usual in Anglo-Saxon times.

The Appleton Family

Mr. Lysander John Appleton
Mrs. Lysander John Appleton
Miss Daysey Mayme Appleton
Master Chauncey Devere Appleton

ALL his life Lysander John Appleton has been governed by a Coat Tail Censor. When his wife isn't pulling his coat tail for him to sit down, it is his daughter Daysey Mayme. Other men get up in public and have their say, and their women folks sit down in front and split kid gloves applauding, but Daysey Mayme and her mother always make it a point to sit behind Lysander John and pull at his coat tail when they think it is time for him to sit down. As both are club members and know all about the art of public speaking, they pull promptly and often.

—x—

Daysey Mayme Appleton loves her brother, Chauncey Devere, the most when it is necessary to send to the butcher's for five cents worth of liver. If there is anything more degrading to the pride of a princess than to send her to a butcher shop for five cents worth of liver, Daysey Mayme does not know what it is.

—x—

The women-folks in the Appleton family call the front porch the veranda, but Lysander John and his son Chauncey Devere persist in calling it the stoop.

—x—

When Lysander John Appleton goes to church and hears them singing about the Rock of Ages, and what a safe retreat it is when "troubles o'er me roll," he always thinks of the room at his house which the women folks call his Den, and in which he is permitted to seek a retreat when his wife and daughter are giving a party.

PUDDINGS AND CAKE

IT IS during the cold weather we enjoy the puddings and sauces. The following is a famous pudding which the Savoy chef prepared and shipped two tons of to America for holiday consumption:

English Plum Pudding.

Take twelve ounces of malaga raisins, the same of smyrna raisins, currants, suet and candied orange peel. Ten ounces of bread crumbs, nine ounces of flour, one ounce of preserved ginger chopped, four ounces of chopped apple, one ounce of chopped citron, one teaspoonful of salt, eight ounces of brown sugar, six eggs and a cupful of milk. Mix and steam five hours. This recipe makes seven pounds of pudding.

Plum Pudding.

Put into a bowl one-half pound of finely chopped suet, the same of flour, and brown sugar, one-fourth of a pound of bread crumbs, one-fourth of a teaspoonful each of cinnamon, nutmeg, allspice, cloves and ginger. One-half pound of currants, one-fourth pound each of malaga raisins, lemon peel, citron and orange peel, all cut fine. One-half pint of black molasses, one-fourth pint of grapejuice or cider, two beaten eggs, the juice and grated rinds of two lemons. Mix well, put into buttered molds and steam four hours. This keeps indefinitely. Reheat before serving.

Bishop Bread.

Take two cupfuls of brown sugar, one-half cupful of butter, four eggs added one at a time; one cake of sweet chocolate grated and mixed with two cupfuls of flour, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of cinnamon and one-half pound of blanched and shredded almonds. Mix and spread in a well-floured tin and bake twenty minutes in a moderate oven. Cut into strips when cool.

EDITORIAL

VOX POPULI

Lower taxes, less paternalism and an honest understanding that the people themselves eventually pay for every governmental extravagance or vagery or service, is the demand for 1925.

GOOD REVENUE PRODUCER

It is reported that hereafter Australian citizens will be fined $10 for failure to vote. Such a law in the United States would produce a revenue of millions annually for the United States treasury.

TEACHING RESPONSIBILITY

School savings bank balances increased from $11,897,000 to $20,435,000 during the year ending June 30, says an American Bankers' Association report. The number of savings bank pupils increased 328,475 or almost 17 per cent. With the growing sense of responsibility, school honor rolls have grown from less than 30 per cent. to more than 33 per cent.

Many an irresponsible man has been cured by giving him something to do. Many a "bad" boy, many a rebellious girl, can be started on the safe road by the responsibility of a bank account.

No child was ever helped by being robbed of the privilege of property, the two dangerous extremes of society being the submerged few who have been so robbed, and the exotic few who have so much that things have no intrinsic meaning or value.

This school bank account idea beats all the languages, dead or alive, for developing character and social stamina.

Let's have more of it; not for the riches themselves—we're rich enough as a nation—but for what it will do in teaching responsibility.

CROSS-WORD PUZZLES

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

EXTENSIVE BUILDING PLANS

There is to be no slump in building activities this year, but instead a recent federal survey shows that building plans over the entire country equal or exceed the 1924 record.

This is good news for the lumber industry, as lumber is the chief building material employed in our couuntry.

If properly constructed, a frame building is nearly as fire-resisting as any other. The loss is not so great in remodeling as with other materials, for the lumber may be re-used.

Also, winter construction is possible where lumber is used, affording employment to labor during a usually slack season.

The next meeting of the Point Loma Assembly will be held in the clubhouse, on Talbot street, Thursday, February 12, at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Lou V. Conover is in charge of the literary program and has arranged for Mr. Kirk Smith to speak. Mr. Smith's subject will be, "Out of the Beaten Paths in Alaska." Mrs. Etta Steiger and Mrs. Albert Lamkin will serve tea. All Point Loma and Ocean Beach ladies are invited.

SHOOTERS, BEWARE!

There is an ordinance (No. 7310) which prohibits the discharge of air-guns, slingshots and bean shooters in San Diego. Any person found guilty of violation of any provision of this ordinance shall be punished by a fine of from $5 to $50, or by imprisonment in the city jail for a period of from two to 25 days, "or by both such fine and imprisonment."

KNOWS WHEREOF HE SPEAKS

That wise and noted writer, Arthur Brisbane, recently broadcasted the following truism in his famous "Today" column:

"The editors of the weekly newspapers are the most influential men in the United States. Each one can influence at least one congressman and two senators, more than half a dozen so-called big editors could influence them."

And it's a significant fact that several thousand of these editors of community papers can publish an article almost simultaneously sending it into millions of farm houses and village homes.

Read the "LOMA LORE" series in The Beach News every week for interesting historical facts, told most entertainingly by Winifred Davidson.

LEGISLATIVE LETTER

By C. W. TURNER

Sacramento.—Every session of the legislature begins with a declaration by members of both houses that they favor the introduction of but few bills, prompt action on those introduced and quick return to their homes.

Every session sees this program grow less and less likely of accomplishment as the days go by, and the introduction of so vast a number of measures (in many cases duplicated in both houses) that weeks of debate and consideration would be required to settle them one way or the other.

The present session is no exception to the rule. It will be recalled that it was announced that there would be very few bills introduced, yet on the first day for the introduction of bills, on senator introduced nineteen and one assemblyman offered twenty-nine, and when recess was taken 773 bills had been introduced in the senate—fifteen more than last year—and 1,169 in the assembly, which was eighty-nine less than two years ago. When the legislature reconvenes on February 24 it will have 1,942 measures before it for consideration.

The budget and the apportionment bills are the most important and will unquestionably cause long debates, especially the latter, unless a compromise is reached between the "cow counties" and the cities.

The measures which will probably directly interest more Californians than any others are various schemes for extending the highway system of the state, schemes which include a tax upon gasoline of 1 cent more per gallon than at present; a direct property tax, and a tax increase on motor vehicles. These, with a bond issue of $25,000,000, it is thought, would provide the necessary money to continue the present road system.

It is proposed to divide the highway system into two sections, the first to include the interurban routes and the main roads; and the second to cover minor roads and lines leading to recreational locations. Though the special committee which has been studying the highway problems were asked to recommend the building of some 3,000 miles, it endorsed only 169 miles which include roads from San Rafael to San Quentin; Crescent City to the Oregon line; completion of the great highway from San Francisco to Oregon; the line from Alturas to Oregon; the line from Coleville to the Nevada line, which would complete the connection with Nevada; the line from Bakersfield to Mojave, which would be the longest and most complicated of the proposed new roads; the road from Needles to Topac; the line from Shaver Wells to Coachella, from Blythe to the Colorado river; the line connecting Oxnard with the main coast trunk line and the seven miles between San Diego and Tia Juana.

It will be noticed that all of the roads endorsed would either connect the California highways with those of Oregon, Nevada, Arizona and Mexico, or else would complete the main trunk lines of the state.

To complete the other roads asked for, it is estimated, would cost $177,000,000 and that amount of course would have to be raised by bonds. The subjects of taxing motor vehicles and gasoline and of completing the highway system are so important that during the recess many members planned to hold special meetings of their constituents for the purpose of having a public discussion of the subjects and securing the views of the people on the issues involved.

Other motor vehicle bills that will be of general interest are by Senator Breed to amend the existing statutes to refuse chauffeurs' licenses to persons having even minor physical disabilities, and forbids their issuance to persons mentally unsound. The motor vehicle department is to inquire into automobile accidents and when a driver is found responsible for an accident causing death or serious injury his license is to be revoked. Habitual speeders and reckless drivers, on third conviction, will lose their licenses. Farmers who use their motor vehicles for only occasional transportation of personal property are to be relieved of the necessity of taking out commercial licenses. Any person promising to appear in court, and failing to do so, is to be subject to five days in jail; his license and that of his vehicle to be suspended until he does appear.

The university of California will not be eligible for competition in Rhodes scholarships for the coming two years by reason of an arbitrary grouping of the scholarship commission which places California in group B. Only colleges in groups A and C will compete this year and 1926.

There are now $13,500,000 in protested tax payments being held up by litigations instituted by the Southern Pacific and the Santa Fe railroads in their test of the King tax law. Of the amount $1,363,627.27 represents what the roads refuse to pay the state for the fiscal year, 1924-25.

An approximate increase of 35 per cent in convictions for traffic violations in 1924, over the preceding year, is shown in the report of the chief of the motor vehicle division; 67,256 persons were convicted.

KNITTED EVENING FROCKS; SPRING NECKWEAR APPEARS

AND now the knitted evening frock! From the standpoint of the unique, the evening frock, so alluringly slenderizing, is one of the fashion sensations of the present season. Exquisitely colorful, with fur binding its hemline and rhinestones traversing a design of scintillating splendor, the knitted evening gown satisfies aesthetic taste even to the minutest detail.

Novelty and charm, however, are not the only claims to distinction which stylists set forth in the name of knitcraft, for this unique gown. If there is one virtue more than another which the party dress of knitted fabric possesses, it is practicability. For instance, who would think of going to a house party, without taking a "scrumptious" evening frock along? The crying need has ever been for an evening gown which will submit to being tucked into minimum space in one's week-end bag or suitcase, emerging from the ordeal as fresh looking as ever. There is where the knitted frock wins over fluffy ruffles of silk, satin or chiffon. It refuses to look crumpled and mussed. Ready at a moment's notice for dinner-dance, party or any evening function; not in the least crestfallen in appearance but as well groomed looking as when it was taken down from its hanger in one's wardrobe.

As to "alluringly slenderizing," a term used advisedly—if exercising and refraining from one's favorite pastry fails to accomplish results, try wearing a gown of knitted silk or rayon.

As everyone knows, intriguing color is the outstanding characteristic throughout costuming this season. Color in its most captivating phase is interpreted in the gown pictured here. It is fashioned of knitted fabric in Spanish yellow. In line with fashion's dictates, this knitted frock borders its short tunic with fur—Russian sable in this instance. A handsome design wrought in sparkling rhinestones adds still another decorative touch.

Not only in evening frocks, such as the picture shows, are the knitted arts doing themselves proud, but this season also witnesses a revelation of fascinating accessories such as wide pastel colored scarves done in lace-like stitch and wondrous shawls which carry the atmosphere of true Spanish grace.

It is really astonishing how these colorful knitted scarves or shawls have a magic of casting a glamor of gorgeousness over the simplest of costumes.

A peep behind the scenes where neckwear for spring is under way discloses a great variety in pieces, and the experienced stylist cannot help concluding that spring frocks are to retain the simple lines and decorative treatments which are now so popular. In neckwear all the old favorites are well represented. There are many collar and cuff sets, some with vestee or bib attachment, other collar and jabot pieces, separate vestees and separate jabots, and long frills to be worn with dresses that have round necks and front or side fastening.

Two collar and cuff sets, one with bib attachment and a collar and flat jabot piece, are shown here, and these are among the staple styles. Besides these, there are wide flaring collars and flaring cuffs to match, of plain or striped linen, to be worn with tailored frocks. Extremes of this style are shown on dresses of printed fabrics, and are made of plain linen or silk in white or colors. Very long ties, of moderately wide ribbon, are sometimes worn with them, or will be when the new spring frocks make their debut. We are at least assured of a great variety in necklines and that the round neck will make demand for many dainty collars. Among the styles to bid for attention there are some high-necked frocks, but their chances of success are not so good as the neckline high at the back and "V"-shaped in front. Another certainty is the frilly jabot—one of the loveliest conceits to be worn with the tailored street frock or more formal afternoon dress. Paris has launched some spirited coat frocks with low "V"-shaped front opening, disclosing a high choker collar and tiny flat tie. With the tall-crowned hats they certainly achieve a marked slenderizing of the figure.

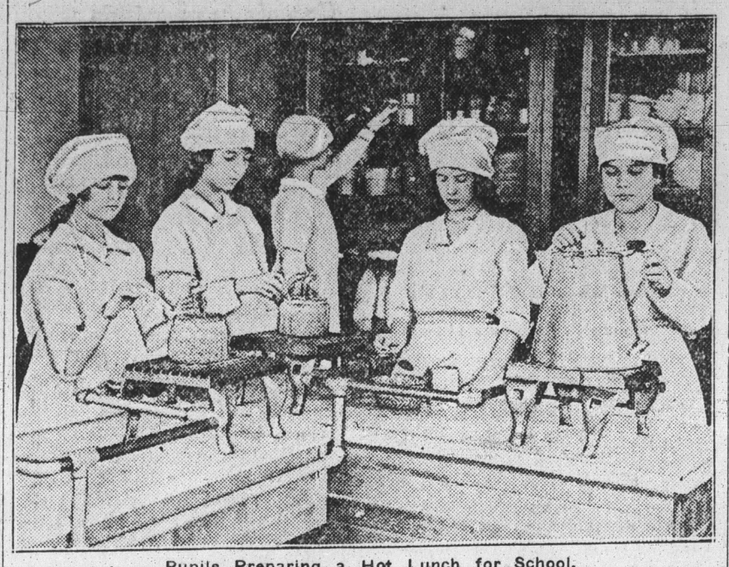
LUNCHES SERVED HOT IN THE SCHOOL ROOM



Pupils Preparing a Hot Lunch for School.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

In many places schools are beginning to serve noon lunches or one or two dishes that can be eaten with food brought from home. Mothers are interesting themselves in this work not only because of its effect upon the health of their children, but also because of its relation to education for homemaking. In their own homes they try to serve wholesome food and also to train their children to good habits in eating. They realize, however, that the meal at school is in some ways a better opportunity for training than those served at home. Unlike the other meals of the child's day, it is eaten during hours set apart for education. The child's mind is therefore in a receptive condition, and every precaution that is taken to adapt the lunch to his physical and mental needs is likely to teach a lesson in food and nutrition.

The recipes for lunch dishes may be given to the older girls in school, discussed in class, and tried at home. The special dish for the day, which in winter is usually hot, can be prepared by groups of pupils working in turn. It is seldom desirable to prepare more than one dish a day in a small school, and this should, for the sake of variety, differ from day to day. It may be cocoa, soup, chowder, stew, a vegetable or eggs. Other food for lunch can be brought from home, or ready-to-eat food (bread, crackers, fruit, or cakes and cookies), can be bought to round out the meal. The aim should be to make the noonday meal appetizing, and to include in it the foods that children need.

The quick potato soup for which the recipe is given below is a good one to serve as the hot part of a school lunch. The United States Department of Agriculture recommends it.

Quick Potato Soup.

1 quart of milk	2 tablespoonfuls butter or other fat
1 cupful grated potato
1½ teaspoonfuls salt	A few drops of onion juice

Add the potatoes to the milk. Bring to the boiling point, then add the fat, salt and onion juice. Serve with or without straining. This amount will serve about 6 portions.

DELICIOUS SOUPS IN FAVOR FOR WINTER

Many Are So Hearty They Form Chief Dish.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Black bean soup, split pea soup, cream of bean or pea soup, and puree of beans and tomatoes are delicious, inexpensive and easy to make. Many of these soups are so hearty that they can form the chief dish of a meal, say food specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Soak and cook a pint of peas or beans as usual, but take more water, about two quarts, and cook until very soft. Then put them through a sieve. These mashed beans and peas are ready to be made into all kinds of soups by adding the various seasonings, water and milk, or stock enough to make two quarts. These soups should all have a little flour added to them as a binder to prevent the thick part from settling to the bottom. Mix thoroughly two tablespoonfuls fat with two tablespoonfuls flour, add a little of the hot soup, and stir until it is smooth, then add to the remaining soup, stirring to prevent lumping, and cook for about ten minutes.

Black Bean Soup or Split Pea Soup.

To the pulp from one pint of beans or peas, add enough water or stock to make two quarts. Thicken with flour as directed. Season with salt and pepper. The juice of a lemon and one-half teaspoonful of mustard adds to the flavor.

Puree of Porridge of Beans and Tomatoes.

Instead of milk, tomatoes may be used. Add a cupful of canned tomatoes or three medium-sized tomatoes, which have been cooked for ten minutes and put through a sieve. If the porridge is too thick, add water or stock. Season and add the flour as directed.

Bean or Pea Soup With Meat.

The peas or beans are soaked as usual and cooked with the meat in four quarts of water instead of in two quarts. Use a soup or ham bone, or one-half pound of salt pork or any smoked meat, and cook until the beans are soft. Remove the meat and put the soup through a sieve. Season and thicken. The cooked meat cut in small pieces may be added to the soup. An onion, several stalks of celery, or soup herbs are good with the soup.

Plan to Remove Mildew From Leather Articles

Any leather article is almost certain to mildew if kept in a warm, damp place, such as a celler, or stable. This mildew probably will not seriously reduce the serviceability of the leather, unless allowed to remain on it too long. It may, however, change the color appreciably, thus injuring the appearance.

The simplest way to prevent mildewing, says the United States Department of Agriculture, is to keep the leather in a well-ventilated, dry, well-lighted place, preferably one exposed to the sunlight. Mildew cannot make much headway in the sunshine. When mildew develops, it should be washed off with soap and warm water, or simply wiped off with a moist cloth, drying the leather well afterwards. These measures are better than the use of preparations to prevent the growth of mildew.

WOODBOX ON CASTERS USEFUL IN KITCHEN

Easily Rolled Out of Way When Cooking Is Over.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Even so simple a change as putting casters on the woodbox makes a difference in the cleanliness of the kitchen and the ease of managing the fire. The woodbox can be easily rolled close to the range when the fire must be replenished, and pushed out of the way when the cooking is over. Also, when it can be rolled about, rubbish and dirt will not gather behind and under it as with a stationary box, too heavy to move.

In the farm home where this picture was taken by the United States Department of Agriculture the housekeeper added a rack at the back on which to hang newspapers. They are then ready to start the fire, clean the stove or put down when a messy job is in progress, such as picking chicken, cleaning fish, or polishing silver.

Old-Fashioned Bowl of Bread and Milk Is Good

A good, old-fashioned bowl of bread and milk, says the United States Department of Agriculture, is the very best restorative at the end of a hard day's work. On a cold night the bread may be dropped in hot milk, enough to wet it thoroughly, with just a suspicion of salt for flavor. In England's damp climate bread and milk is the first thought after a long tramp or a day in the open. Almost every brain worker, whether student or professor, doctor, preacher, or business man, knows the refreshing tonic of a steaming bowl of bread and milk. Most children like it, and nothing could be better for them at bedtime or for lunch. When the older ones eat precooked crisp breakfast food, baby may have bread and milk for a change. It is a good emergency supper, too, for the younger ones, when there is not time enough for thorough cooking of wheat or oatmeal cereal.

Good Stock for Soup

There is no reason why the liquor from fresh boiled pork should not be good soup stock if carefully freed from fat. A few drops of lemon juice improves the flavor, says the United States Department of Agriculture.

Wild Animals Costly

Few wild animals can now be bought in the open market, the industry being so much interfered with owing to post-war conditions. It is becoming increasingly difficult for circuses and zoological gardens to replace their stock, and prices have soared proportionately. The center of the world market is Hamburg, Germany, where a giraffe brings $5,000; a hippopotamus, $2,500 to $5,000, and a fine lion, $1,250.

Internal cleanliness protects against disease

IN CONSTIPATION, say intestinal specialists, lies the primary cause of more than three-quarters of all illness, including the gravest diseases of life.

Laxatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, says a noted authority, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition and often lead to permanent injury.

Why Physicians Favour Lubrication

Medical science has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus, Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water, it is harmless.

Take Nujol regularly and adopt this habit of internal cleanliness. For sale by all druggists.

THE LILAC TRAIN

By FRANCES MITCHELL

(© by Short Story Pub. Co.)

MISS 'LIZBETH had a story, but what it was, was a vexed question among the gossips, some of whom declared that she was once to have been married, and the guests were all in the house; she was dressed, and the preacher waiting to perform the ceremony, when a note was brought her, from her affianced, saying he had left, never to return, and asking her to forget him. Others told of a drunken husband, who had deserted her, and then had tracked her to her present home, whither she had fled, bearing her maiden name, to live down her sorrow, and now came back, occasionally, after dark, and gave a peculiar rap on the window, which she understoood as a demand for money. They further told, how, to prevent his proclaiming himself as her husband, she always gave him the sum he required, although she lived on but meager fare for weeks afterward. But the few who knew Miss 'Lizbeth best, declared that she was a gentle little woman of refined tastes, who kept her secret because it was sacred to her, and not because of any disgrace attached to it. Indeed, one of these friends had once gone so far as to intimate that she wished Miss 'Lizbeth would give her some little statement that she might make, and so close the mouths of the gossips, but the little woman had only smiled and said:

"Why, they have partaken of me and my sorrows, with their tea, for so long, that they would be unable to drink it, minus the flavor; no, just let them continue to speculate, and in speculating, be happy."

And so five years had gone by, and still Miss 'Lizbeth's secret was discussed by the gossips, and still the only point they could fully agree upon was that there was certainly a man in the case, when, one day, the news came that at eight, the next evening, the lilac train would pass through en route for Montana.

Every one in the little town knew what the coming of the lilac train meant, for it was no new thing—this sending of a carload of blossoms, sometimes into the mining towns of the North, where the breath from the smelters destroyed every vestige of vegetation; sometimes to the towns nestled high up the mountain sides, and shivered with their summer frosts and the biting winds from the snow fields around them. Only the last year, Leadville had been brightened by the coming of the "lilac train," for so it was called, although there were always other kinds of flowers and usually but one carload; but, though the shelves at one end of the car held potted plants and cut flowers of every variety, it was the lilacs that were loaded, by trucks full, as the train stopped at one station and then at another.

"That's a pretty custom you have here in Utah," Miss 'Lizbeth had said to the neighbor who, in passing, had noticed her standing by a lilac bush, caressing a blossom she had plucked, and had told her about the coming of the lilac train. "They say that up in Butte and Anaconda and those other Montana mining towns, there is not a tree, shrub or plant growing out of doors. I heard of one small azalea that sold easily for fifteen dollars in Butte. What a sight it must be to those people to see a whole carload of blossoms coming into their midst!"

"They say they are as delighted as if a carload of gold nuggets were being distributed. Will you unload your bush, there, for their benefit?"

"Indeed, I shall be only too glad to send some nice bouquets. I love lilacs," and as she stooped to pick up the flower she had dropped, her friend passed on, remarking:

"Well, I must be off," and did not see the tear in Miss 'Lizbeth's eye, nor notice the tremor in her voice.

That night, Miss 'Lizbeth sat alone on her little front porch and watched the moon come slowly up from behind the great mass of the Wahsatch range, and sail off into the blue vault above, and as she watched she thought:

"Yes, I'll do it. It can't do any harm. If it falls into Reuben's hands, he'll understand what it means. If it don't, why, the blossoms will cheer some one's heart, and the—other, will just excite a little curiosity. Five years ago, day after tomorrow, I got off the train here, and Reuben went on up North. The lilac train went just ahead of his, and I picked up one of the blossoms that had fallen when they were loading, and handed it to him. I don't know why I did it; Reuben had never asked for a promise of any kind from me, but I had read something in his eyes, all that year when I was boarding at his mother's. And his treatment of me, too, was another thing. He would come to meet me and walk home with me, and would ask, so gently, if the day had been a hard one. He was such a great, good-hearted fellow! No, I don't know why I did it, but when I handed him the blossom, I said, 'I'll wait for you, Reuben, for years, if it is necessary,' and then I turned and fled to the waiting room, and his train was just starting, so he could not answer, but I knew his heart."

There Miss 'Lizbeth heaved a sad little sigh, and sat tapping her lips with the lilac blossom she had taken from her belt.

"I wonder why he never wrote to me," she mused on presently. "I expect he failed in his mining and was discouraged. I know Reuben loved me," and the little woman blushed as if she had been talking to Reuben himself. "Yes, he did. I know he did, and I'll—do it!" and then she arose and went into the house.

The next day, Miss 'Lizbeth went down town, looking her best in a pretty dark-blue suit, with a neat walking hat to match, and returned in an hour, with a tiny envelope in her hand. Later in the evening, she started out with two large bunches of lilacs, and if the gossips had met her, they would have noticed a certain guilty look she wore, and would have declared that the drunken husband had been around lately.

An impatient crowd of people had been standing in the rain, since the early morning, expecting momentarily to hear the whistle of the engine that would bring the lilac car into the Butte depot. The noon whistles had sounded; still no evidence of the coming of the lilac car; still a pouring rain and still a waiting mass of people. Twelve-fifteen — thirty — forty-five—a whistle and the crowd began to surge forward. Into the depot the engine panted, and with a shout the anxious, weary waiters welcomed the men who stood on the platforms, with arms full of blossoms.

"Throw them this way, pardner." "Give us a few, over here." "Don't forget us. We can't get any closer." Such were the cries that came up from various quarters, as men, women and children, reached and scrambled for the flowers that came pouring upon them.

Coming with quick step, down one of the streets, was a man roughly dressed in a miner's garb, and close behind him, another, clad in a neat brown business suit.

"Now, I do wonder if I am too late for the lilac train," soliloquized the man in the lead. "'Twill be the first one I have missed since I came into Montana. Five years ago, she gave me a blossom that had fallen when they were loading the lilac train, and then she said, 'I'll wait for you, Reuben!' She read in my face what I did not have the manhood to tell her. She must have been sorry for me then, and so spoke, before she thought, but afterward, she grew sorry for herself, I suppose, when she realized what she had done, for she didn't answer that letter I wrote, as soon as I got here, telling her how gladly I could work now, knowing that she was waiting for me. Well, she'd had to wait a long time, for luck was against me, right along, but I didn't care since she wasn't waiting for me, after all. She was in earnest when she said she'd wait. I am sure of that. And now, if only I could send her a message, saying, 'I am coming.—Reuben,' it would be worth all these years of work and discouragement. I've seen people from there, many times since, but they didn't know that I knew her, and I never asked about her—I was afraid, somehow, of what they might tell me, till about a month ago, when the Sweet Lilac began to show rich streaks. Then—" and here he clenched his hands till the nails cut into the calloused flesh, "then I asked Jim Davis, if he knew her; he said he didn't, but he had heard her name in connection with some rumor about a drunken husband, and I turned and left him, and spent a night that was—well, a man don't have to die, to taste of the tortures of hell. Ah, I am not too late," for he had come in sight of the car, and in another moment, he and the man in brown, who had kept even pace with him, for a block or more, were grasping frantically at a large bouquet that came over the heads of the crowd, within easy reach for them.

"There, stranger," exclaimed the miner, "I beat you on that catch, but there are enough here for two, so I'll cut the string and 'divy' up, as we say in camp."

"You are generous, sir," answered his late rival, "and I will gladly pay you any sum you may name, for my share of them. My little sick daughter—"

"Little sick daughter? Well, now, do you think I'd sell you a few flowers for her? And besides, money is nothing to me. Have you heard of the Sweet Lilac, that sold yesterday for fifty thousand— What's this?" and lifting a tiny tintype that had been fastened in among the stems, he gazed into the face that spoke back to him, with a look of love, he only, could read. "I'm waiting for you, Reuben," were the words he saw faintly scratched beneath the face, and turning to his wondering companion, he said, as he held the entire bonquet to him:

"Just give me one small spray of the flowers, stranger, and you can have all the rest for the little girl. I'm going in here to send a telegram that says, 'I am coming.—Reuben.'"

Odor of Flowers Not Always Most Pleasing

Nearly everyone likes the smells of freshly cut flowers, of violets, roses and others that belong to the sweet-smelling varieties. But psychologists who have studied the matter scientifically find that flower odors are not really the ones most intensely and universally pleasing to the human nose.

This distinction belongs to the spicy odors such as cinnamon, cloves, nutmeg and the others of similar character. Among hundreds of persons tested, always with odors that they could not identify by seeing the flower or in any way except by the sense of smell, not one person failed to describe a faint smell of cinnamon as being pleasant, while a number of persons were found to vote against each one of the flower odors.

BEHIND-TIME LAUGHTER

All the Laughing children were back in Laughter land.

It was one of the most interesting places you could possibly imagine.

They were always rushing back and forth, dashing off here, and hurrying off there.

They were always being called upon.

They felt bad though when they were not busy.

They did not like to be around waiting to be called. You see whenever any one felt like laughing, in a flash the Laughing children were sent the message and they were there ready to help the laughter of the people.

They didn't take a second to get there. For Laughter land is very close to where there are people. Laughter land spreads over all parts.

So, of course, when we say that all the Laughing children were back in Laughter land we mean all of those who weren't at that time laughing with the people.

They were repeating some of the jokes they had heard to their dear old parents Lady Gaiety and Lord Fun, when several little Laughing children came back to Laughter land.

They came slowly, and their little mouths which were usually smiling looked drooping.

"My Merry Dears," said Lady Gaiety, "what is the trouble?"

"Behind-time again," they said.

"What do you mean, my children?" asked Lord Fun.

"You couldn't have been late, My Merry Dears," said Lady Gaiety. "None of the family ever can be late."

"Oh, no, Mother Gaiety," they said, "that was not the trouble.

"We weren't late. We were there, but that didn't make any difference.

"We thought we were wanted and we hurried off but those who wanted us didn't seem to be so sure whether they wanted to laugh or not.

"And they took so long about it that they didn't half enter into the spirit of the thing.

"They were at a party and they didn't seem to want to show they were having a good time.

"They wouldn't suggest any games and yet they didn't seem to like the games that were suggested.

"And when all the others laughed and we thought they were to laugh too—they just stood about and smiled little, snippy smiles, with their heads at one side.

They Just Stood About.

"This happened ever so many times this afternoon and it has just about discouraged us.

"We don't like behind-time laughter."

And the children almost burst out crying—something practically unknown in Laughter land.

"There, there," said Lady Gaiety, "you mustn't feel bad, My Merry Dears, you did your best. If some won't join in the fun and will act in a sulky fashion, you're not to blame.

"You were ready. They didn't really deserve the willingness and the jolly feelings you were so ready to give them."

"Ah, don't be sad," said Lord Fun "I know it is hard not to be, for behind-time laughter, and those who just act as though it would hurt them to laugh and enter into the fun of a party, are very, very depressing.

"It is just as though they went around, as the saying is, and threw cold water on everything.

"But there! My dear children, do not go to those again until you're pretty sure they really want you. Just leave them alone.

"For those who are behind-time in their laughter should be left behind by the Laughing children.

"And now, just to have a good practice in Laughter land, we will all join in the great Laughing chorus."

So Lady Gaiety and Lord Fun and all those in Laughter land sang the jolly Laughing chorus which ended off in all kinds of jolly, merry, musical laughs.

Feel Stiff and Achy After Every Cold?

Do You Have Constant Backache? Feel Old and Lame and Suffer Sharp, Rheumatic Pains? Then Look to Your Kidneys!

DOES every cold, chill or attack of grip leave you worn-out and utterly miserable? Do you feel old and lame, stiff and rheumatic? Does your back ache with a dull, unceasing throb, until it seems you just can't stand it any longer?

Then look to your kidneys! Grip, colds and chills are mighty hard on the kidneys. They fill the blood with poisons and impurities that the kidneys must filter off. The kidneys weaken under this rush of new work; become congested and inflamed.

It's little wonder, then, that every cold leaves you with torturing backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and annoying bladder irregularities.

Don't delay! Get a box of Doan's Pills. Give your weakened kidneys the help they need. Assist them, also, by drinking pure water freely, eating lightly and getting plenty of fresh air and rest. Doan's Pills have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's," Say These Good Folks:

MRS. S. M. HYPES, 2022 Ina St., Long Beach, Cal., says: "Kidney trouble had me feeling all out of sorts and I couldn't keep up with my housework. Sharp pains took me through the small of my back and it was difficult to get up or down. Dizziness and headaches bothered me, too, and my nerves became all unstrung. After using a few boxes of Doan's Pills I was cured and I have had no return of the trouble."

ANDERSON GRAY, 857 22d St., Oakland, Cal., says: "There wasn't a night but what I didn't have to get up a few times to pass the kidney secretions, which burned in passage. Sharp, twinging pains took me in the small of my back, too, and each move I made caused those pains to dig in deeper. My back was always lame and weak, too. I used a couple of boxes of Doan's Pills and they drove all the trouble from me."

Modern Banking and How it Has Changed From Pre-War Days

ONE of the modern ideas of banks is to teach the public how to save, and how to invest their savings, and therefore "thrift" is one of the leading planks in the creed of the modern banker. Following out that idea, a whole week, from January 17th to January 23rd, has been set aside to the work of calling the attention of the public to the importance of "thrift." Each branch or department of thrift was taken up and emphasized. Thus on one day the importance of prompt payment of bills was emphasized; on another, the advantage of sharing with others; again we had plain "Thrift Day" and then "Life Insurance Day" and "Own Your Home Day," Budget Day" and finally "Safe Investment Day."

But nothing impresses the public more than what they see, and therefore the Humboldt Bank of San Francisco has always made a specialty of affording the public exhibitions which attracted their attention to the passing event of the day. Washington's Birthday, the Boy Scouts, Christmas, have all been illustrated by window exhibits, which even the child could understand. The large crowds which are continually before the bank's windows looking at these timely pictures give evidence that they are doing good work along the line which they were intended to promote. Bank books, savings banks, "home banks," check books and other paraphenalia suggesting banking and savings are neatly arranged in the window and the mind of the observer at once turns to thrift and saving.

It is worthy of note that in calling the attention of the public to the importance of saving and of thrift, the Humboldt does not confine itself to those lines which directly concern its interests as a bank, but go further by suggesting insurance, real estate in the line of owning your own home, etc. The idea can be carried out in every community. No matter how small the town, it is a good idea for the people to save, to own their own homes; to have a family budget, and to be mutually helpful to their neighbors. Directly your local bank will benefit by its customers practicing those economies, just as the Humboldt does in a large city; for it is safe to say that the man or woman who does practice them will sooner or later be a depositor in a bank, if they are not already and that having once learned the lesson of thrift they will have also learned the value of their bank.

KEEPING WELL

PREVENTING DIPHTHERIA

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

SOME diseases, such as cancer, cannot be prevented because their causes are not known.

Until the causes of these diseases are are discovered, they may be reduced or controlled, but they cannot be stamped out.

Other diseases are due to known causes but these causes cannot as yet be controlled.

Such a disease is pneumonia. We know that it is caused by inhaling a certain germ, but we do not know how to prevent it.

Still other diseases are due to causes which can be controlled. These diseases can be entirely prevented.

In 1883, Kleb discovered the diphtheria germ. Ten years later, antitoxin was discovered. Its use has greatly reduced the diphtheria death rate. If every child who contracts diphtheria were given antitoxin in the first two days of the attack, there would be no deaths from diphtheria.

This was a great discovery, but it did not prevent diphtheria. It only saved the child after it was infected.

Then the Schick test was devised, by which it is possible to tell whether the apparently healthy child is susceptible to diphtheria.

Finally, toxin-antitoxin made it possible to make every child immune to diphtheria infection, just as smallpox vaccination protects the individual against this loathsome disease.

If every child, on entering the public school, were given toxin-antitoxin, there would be no diphtheria among school children.

Why is this disease-preventing treatment not used more generally? As King Edward asked, "If preventable, why is it not prevented?"

There are just two reasons—ignorance and carelessness.

We have all the knowledge we need to wipe out this terrible scourge of child life.

For every case of diphtheria today some ignorant or careless parent is responsible.

At Mooseheart, the great school of the Loyal Order of Moose, 1,200 children of deceased members are cared for and educated. Epidemics of diphtheria used to be common in the school.

In 1918, Dr. John Nichols, the resident physician, began giving toxin-antitoxin to every child. In the six years since this treatment was begun there have been just two cases of diphtheria, both in the first year. There has not been a single case since 1920.

The same results can be secured everywhere, if the same methods are adopted.

Diphtheria can be entirely prevented.

Don't risk your child's life by your ignorance or carelessness.

Farm Incomes Shrink; Living Costs Mount

Agricultural Producers Lose Fifteen Billions of Capital Investments During Harding-Coolidge Regime, Official Report Shows.

Washington, D. C.—Proof of the disastrous effects of the deflation of agricultural prices and values begun by the Republican Congress in 1920 and continued under the first year of the Harding-Coolidge administration is furnished in a recent official report from the Department of Agriculture, over which presides Secretary Wallace, himself a Republican and member of President Coolidge's cabinet.

The following is an extract from this report:

"As a means of gauging how the agricultural depression affected farm standards of living in the four years since 1919-1920, the departments points out that in this period wholesale prices of all commodities declined only 25 to 30 per cent., retail prices of 22 food articles declined only 20 to 25 per cent. and living costs declined only 13 to 15 per cent., while the farmer's income declined as much as 60 to 72 per cent. The department also notes that, besides suffering this great decline in current income, the farmers experienced a deflation of property values by which the worth of capital investments owned by farm operators dropped from $48,500,000,000 to $33,422,000,000, a shrinkage which would indicate that the farmers' share in the country's total agricultural property receded from 61 per cent. to 56 per cent."

The same article presents the result of a survey made of 16,000 owner-operated farms for 1923, showing that, allowing $870 for the value of the labor of the farmer and his family, the farm showed an average net balance to the farmer for the year of $270, or 1.5 per cent. on the average value of the farm real estate and its improvements, a "return barely sufficient to pay interest charges," and leaving practically nothing as a return on the farmers' own capital.

Duty On Steel Costs Them $100,000,000 On Agricultural Implements.

New York.—High protective duties on steel, and unlawful combinations of manufacturers and sellers of agricultural machinery and implements have operated to increase the cost of this equipment on farms. H. E. Miles, chairman of the Fair Tariff League, a protectionist organization, is authority for the statement that the Republican tariff makes the "cost of farm implements at least 10 per cent. above honest protection and likely 15 per cent." He says that this excessive "protection" on steel adds a total of $100,000,000 a year to the prices farmers have to pay for their machines and implements.

SEARS-ROEBUCK AGRICULTURAL FOUNDATION

The sheep industry presents one of the bright spots in the present agricultural outlook, according to the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation. The number of sheep in the United States has been increased for two years, but is still far from being back at wartime or pre-war figures.

The United States produces only about 10 per cent of the world's total wool crop, but consumes 25 per cent of it. World carry-over stocks of wool have been shrinking for four years and are now low. World production last year was 66 million pounds below the previous year.

The prices of both wool and lambs have been strong the past two years and the outlook for reasonable profits in sheep is excellent for several years to come.
